

Welcome to a New Season of Coast Watchers!

Coast Watchers is our community science program where volunteers collect data on Lake Huron once a week from May-October about wildlife, plastic pollution, algae blooms and more. Community science is a powerful way to help Lake Huron while enjoying time on the shoreline. May 1st marks the first day of the 2023 season. We are looking forward to a fresh season full of thoughtful observation, collaboration and education.

We will only be accepting Coast Watchers until May 14th, no experience is necessary. If you have been thinking about joining the program please click the button below to register.

Let's Talk Lake Huron: Invasive Species Lake Huron's Most Unwanted Wednesday, May 31, 2023; 11 a.m. ET

Are you ready to dive into the world of invasive species and explore Lake Huron's most unwanted creatures? Explore the background and current state of invasive species in Lake Huron. Learn about their ecological impact and how they affect the fish population in the lake. Also hear about the Sleeping Bear Dunes project in Michigan, which successfully reduced the invasive quagga mussel population.

Goderich Shoreline Clean-up Highlights

180 volunteers removed 600 pounds of garbage from the Goderich shoreline on Earth Day weekend. WOW! This is what can be accomplished when our community works together. It was beautiful to see the collaboration, conversation, and education that took place. Thank you to everyone who helped make it happen!

This was just the start of our beach clean-up journey. We will be hosting 12 more clean-ups from Sarnia to Georgian bay this year. With your help, we will engage 700 volunteers to divert well over 1,000 pounds of garbage from ending up in Lake Huron.
